8 goals

FOR KIDS

Is your church taking kids through a systematic learning process designed to pass on a deep and lasting faith?

It is imperative that parents and churches take action to ensure their kids receive not just facts about faith, but a true and living relationship with God. Kids must discover God for themselves and learn to experience His presence regularly throughout their lives. These eight goals provide a blueprint for Kidmin leaders, volunteers, and parents to build a lasting spiritual faith in their kids.

1 When kids become powerful in prayer, their relationship with God grows deep because they know He is real. Prayer brings kids into the presence of God where they discover Him, sense Him, and watch Him answer their prayers.

2 As kids become responsive in worship, they fall in love with God. These kids have learned to progress from the outer courts of praise, where they merely sing about Him, into the inner courts, where they discover His close being. There they fall in love with their Creator and discover faith for a lifetime.

3 Kids who are biblically fluent have brick-by-brick been introduced to God and His amazing Word. The Bible is a treasure for lifelong learning and obedience. Through Bible stories, kids learn the character of God. Through reading about the life of Jesus, kids discover the love of God. And through God's promises, kids develop hope in God.

4 Spirit-empowered kids have discovered the amazing power of God and His willingness to involve Himself in their lives. They know of the power of the Spirit to heal, answer, act, and work on our behalf. The Spirit powerfully enables kids [as well as anyone] to stand their ground through difficulties of life. This great gift provides power for service, boldness for witnessing, courage in times of difficulty, and assistance with prayer and praise.

5 Kids who are giving selflessly are kids who are passionate about the needs of the world. This is the heart of God. Every lost and needy person in the world is His child, loved by Him. God desires for them to have the opportunity to know Him. Kids quickly grasp this heart of God and a compassion grows in them that can be hard to extinguish. This compassion anchors them to their deep faith as they endeavor to make a difference.

6 It is always wonderful to see kids who are actively serving. Service puts into practice one's time, skills, and talents on behalf of others. When coupled by compassion, kids quickly desire to give back. Kids go from being the one ministered to, to the one desiring to minister. Kids go from needing a Savior, to realizing the need of a Savior in others. Kids go from needing mentors, to being the one to mentor others. This goal is a cornerstone that can help anchor one's Christian faith.

7 Are your kids bold in faith? Do they have a passion to make a difference in people's lives? Do they pray for lost relatives? Do they care about the sick? Do they share their faith? This goal clearly shows spiritual growth in the lives of your kids when they actively and boldly share their faith with others as they act the way they believe Christ would want them to.

8 Living like Christ—what a simple yet profound goal for each of your kids. Your desire should be that each of your kids would live for God the rest of their lives. When tested, they will stand strong. When scared, they will believe in God. When difficulties come, they will pray. When others are in need, they will act. Did someone help deposit that kind of faith in you?

Make these eight goals a priority in your ministry. Remember, finishing every aspect of the curriculum is less important than making God real to the kids and instilling a deep love for God in their hearts. Make your classroom or kids' church a place where kids learn to pray and learn to love God.

Hold Kids' Faith

THREE REASONS I ADVOCATE TRU FIRE CURRICULUM

I've come to realize there is a fundamental flaw in the way we typically approach children's ministry. When you look at the curricula that have been popular over the last five years, this flaw is clear to see. We set out to raise good kids, instead of aiming to train a generation of godly kids.

When I moved to America and joined the Kidmin world four years ago, I was amazed by the number of curricula available. However, I was astounded at the concentration on character traits and the lack of spiritual depth that brought. There seemed to be few curricula that wanted to instill the deeper things of God in our kids.

Week after week, I would get up in front of my kids and challenge them to “go and have peace” or “go and be joyful.” Yet I knew deep down that I wasn’t equipping them to do those things. After all, we were telling kids to have the fruit of the Holy Spirit without any explanation that this fruit is birthed out of the work of the Holy Spirit in our lives.

Tru Fire sees the potential in kids and recognizes they can comprehend way more than we give them credit for.

We wonder why so many in our churches are biblically illiterate, but we are doing little to change that through this next generation. There are many reasons why I am a huge advocate for Tru Fire—the primary one is that it seeks to disciple kids to spiritual maturity. Here are three ways they do that:

HOLY SPIRIT IS TEACHER

I’m tired of using curriculum where the Holy Spirit is an optional add-on. Tru Fire puts the Holy Spirit in His proper place! He is the teacher, the One who can transform our kids’ hearts. Tru Fire gives plenty of space for the Holy Spirit to work in our kids’ hearts.

IT’S DEEPLY SPIRITUAL

When other curricula aim for behavior modification, Tru Fire’s aim is spiritual transformation. There is a depth in their message that isn’t matched by other curricula. Tru Fire sees the potential in kids and recognizes they can comprehend way more than we give them credit for.

KIDS HAVE A PLACE

Through Tru Fire’s “Big God Story,” I’ve found that kids begin to know their role. Rather than aspiring to be like the biblical heroes, they learn that they are a part of God’s story and that God wants to use them to do His work too.

We live in a changing culture, one that is moving far from God. How we raise this next generation will dramatically affect the course of the church for many years to come. I believe Tru Fire can be used as an effective tool to help us disciple our kids.

JOHN HAILES currently serves as the children’s pastor of Stone Creek Church. John thrives on communicating God’s truth to all ages, encouraging and equipping others to grow, and showing love to all people.

RESPONSE STATIONS

Our heart’s desire is to see kids’ lives transformed through the power of the Holy Spirit. We want them to know who the Holy Spirit is and how he can work in their lives.

Tru Fire is built on the understanding that kids can recognize the voice of the Holy Spirit and that he is speaking in their lives. Through interactive response stations at the close of each lesson, Tru Fire positions the Holy Spirit as teacher. Whether it’s attaching prayer requests to the wall, answering who God is to them, or writing on blocks how God has protected them, students have the opportunity to engage with what they’ve learned and listen to how the Holy Spirit is speaking to them.

When kids have learned to discern the voice of the Holy Spirit and are encouraged to respond, this skill can stay with them for the rest of their lives.

The Power of Tough Conversation

Psychologists identify distinct stages of development from infancy, through childhood, to adulthood. As parents, we need to understand how much to explain at each level of development.

Childhood sees the most changes in cognitive, emotional, and relational development in the shortest period of time. Each child is different; some are more advanced than others, but it's helpful to get a good grasp of these stages so we don't talk over their heads or insult them with baby talk.

Think about luggage. You don't ask a six-year-old to carry a one-hundred-pound suitcase. In fact, you don't give him a forty-pound suitcase. You give him a backpack or a little rolling case that weighs about seven pounds. As he grows older and stronger, he can handle a bigger load at each stage of physical development. It's the same for your children's emotional, relational, and spiritual development: give them as much as they can handle, but no more.

We can look at several identifiable stages in the growth of children:

PRESCHOOLERS

Young children are very concrete. They can't grasp abstract principles and processes. A dad came to me with a perplexed look on his face. He said, "I need some help. How can I explain the virgin birth to my little girl? She's four years old."

I answered, “I’m not sure why you need to explain that concept to your daughter. If you want to tell her anything about it, just tell her that God formed Jesus in His mother’s tummy. That’s all she needs to know. I think any attempt to explain the hypostatic union is a bit too much!”

Most preschoolers accept this simple answer. If, though, one of them asks, “What makes this special about Jesus? How is He different from everybody else?” a parent can explain, “The amazing thing is that Jesus was in heaven, but He decided to come to earth to be with us. To do that, He had to be born, and Mary was His mother. God became a human baby.”

ELEMENTARY TO MIDDLE SCHOOL

Children in grade school are learning to process more information, but they still don’t have the ability to analyze complex concepts. As they progress through these grades, parents should gradually give them more analysis and explanation. If they don’t understand, try again and be a bit more concrete; however, you may find that they are far more intellectually advanced than you imagined.

Invite them to ask anything at all. Use their questions as a guide to the depth of the information you give them. Value all the questions they ask, but remember to frame the answer with age-appropriate, concrete, specific terms and concepts.

TWELVE AND UP

Beginning in the last year of middle school, everything is on the table. Our children are hearing all kinds of information from their peers—true and false, helpful and destructive—so don’t be shy about wading in to talk about any subject. Some parents assume their kids are protected from certain topics because they’re in a “good Christian school.” Don’t believe it. In any school, kids are talking about every conceivable topic from every possible angle.

When I say “everything is on the table,” I mean that every topic is fair game and all questions should be honored, but it doesn’t mean gossip or slander is acceptable. The guidelines for talking with older children is the same as for conversations with adults. We speak the truth, but always with wisdom and love.
