It's so much more than a trip—
it changed my life!

On Easter weekend, I stood on the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem among olive trees nearly 1,600 years old in what is today called the Garden of Gethsemane. It may not be the exact spot of Jesus' prayer, but it is close.

From the garden, I could walk a short distance through the valley, past the Temple Mount, and through the winding streets to the Holy Sepulchre, the likely spot of both the crucifixion, burial, and resurrection of Jesus. However, with the Easter crowds pushing around me, I wanted to quiet my spirit and think on those things the Lord went through in His final days and hours.

I opened my Bible and studied the Scriptures in their historical context. It seemed as if the words were sprawled out in front of me. I tried to focus on the things Jesus may have seen and heard. I smelled the trees and the animals, heard the noise dying down from the Temple just across the valley, and saw the light of cooking fires and oil lamps dotting the surrounding area. I imagined Jesus tasting the dust and feeling sweat roll from His forehead as He prayed so earnestly that the cup be removed from Him.

The next day, I walked from Jerusalem, past the Holy Sepulchre, through the Garden of Gethsemane, and up to the top of the Mount of Olives. The climb up the Mount took me no more than twenty minutes. I looked toward the unpopulated Judean hills and realized that Jesus could have so easily walked those few minutes up the Mount of Olives and escaped into the desert filled with caverns, hills, and caves.

My realization that Easter weekend, standing on the Mount of Olives, was not only God's sacrifice, but also the great human choice that existed in the framework of those hours. As I gazed at the cloudless blue sky, my spirit felt overwhelmed with joy knowing death was conquered. I was struck by the significance of Jesus' sacrifice and devotion to God—and to the people loved by God. With His human will and the Spirit of the Holy One in Him, He chose not to run. He stayed, bringing us all hope through His death and resurrection.

Dear Traveler,

I'm Amy, director for the Center for Holy Lands Studies (CHLS).

I know a trip to biblical places is a big investment. However, the truth is I don't think any of us are satisfied with a black-and-white, two-dimensional view of the Bible, nor Jesus for that matter.

I felt this tension when I was nineteen years old. I picked up a catalog on studying in Israel, and my spirit leapt. For years, I kept it on my bedside table while its edges curled and its cover crinkled. It was my commitment to one day go and explore the Bible in the very places where its stories and events took place.

Two years later, I found myself living in Israel and studying the Bible in its geographical, historical, cultural, and spiritual contexts. Experiences like the one detailed on the left started the journey of a lifetime.

CHLS is here so you can also have the chance to explore the origins of your faith, live out that faith in the present, and pass it on to the next generation.

BUILDING BRIDGES WITH A MEGA SPORTS CAMP® OUTREACH

Matthew Collver had no idea what he was getting into. When he arrived in the Denver neighborhood of Park Hill to plant a church, Collver quickly realized that he was planting in a divided community. Park Hill was one of the first integrated neighborhoods in the United States. Unfortunately, that legacy didn't continue through the decades.

"We go to a park north of MLK [Boulevard] and we're the only white people there. Typically, we go to a park south of MLK and it's all white people," said Pastor Collver of The Hills Church.

“We had 85 kids come and only maybe 10 were our own”

Before even holding a service, he began to look for tangible ways to bless the neighborhood. The church partnered with local schools doing projects like Teacher Appreciation lunches and buying a bounce house that they brought to school events.

“We wanted to be very intentional about not just showing up and sending out a mailer saying, ‘here we are, come to us,’” said Collver.

Building bridges with the local schools paid off when Collver decided to host an event of his own. The church wanted to provide something to the community that helped build unity.

“Things that break down barriers are sports and kids.” Collver added.

His team decided to host a MEGA Sports Camp VBS for area students. MEGA Sports Camp is a sports ministry outreach for preschool and elementary kids that uses Bible teachings and sports training to create an unforgettable, life-changing outreach event.

Leveraging the relationships that he had built with local schools, Collver asked if his team could distribute flyers to the students. Every school said yes.

As a new church plant without a permanent location they needed to secure a spot to host the camp. An elementary school in their neighborhood quickly agreed to let the church use their facilities. The school wanted to partner with Collver to provide kids a safe and neutral territory to learn and play.

“We had 85 kids come and only maybe 10 were our own,” said Collver.

They had kids from both sides of town attend. With that many community kids in attendance, the church had a unique opportunity to host and care for people that may never step foot in a church service. For four days, the kids spent time with volunteer coaches gaining sports skills, in team huddles working on character development, and in group rallies being exposed to the Word of God. The camp culminated on Friday when the church hosted a celebratory barbeque.

Collver recalls parents coming up on the second or third day of the camp saying, “My kids love this camp, thank you for doing this for the neighborhood!” Another family thanked him saying, “My kids loved this more than the $400 camp I sent them to earlier this year.”

As a church plant, volunteers are at a premium. To make sure they had all the resources they needed, Collver partnered with other churches and ministries. Some churches sent students from their youth ministry to act as coaches and a few Chi Alpha groups, a college ministry of the Assemblies of God, came to serve at the camp.

“The curriculum made it easy so I said, ‘here’s what I need, here’s how many people.’ I was able to get them the curriculum ahead of time and they all came prepared.”

The church even brought in a former pro basketball player from the Denver Nuggets to share his story with the students.

“We’re going to do it again this year,” Collver said. “We want it to be something we do every year.”

MEGA Sports Camp® outreach combines the sports kids love with Bible stories and small group time, resulting in a truly incredibly impact on your community:

- Up to 90% of kids who attend are guests.
- Up to 20% of kids give their lives to Jesus.
- One church even reported 245 salvations!

New for 2018! MEGA Sports Camp® TEAM Spirit shows preschool and elementary kids how to be great teammates. Through sports stories and Bible stories about Jesus and His team of disciples, kids will discover what it means to put team first. Fun music, MEGA mascot, sports training, and relationship-building small groups round out a great way to introduce kids to a God who loves them. For more information, to go MEGASportsCamp.com.

How to Foster Life-Giving Relationships with Small Groups

Church leaders are discovering that Sunday morning services do not allow enough time for ongoing discipleship.

This is why more and more churches are restructuring their ministries to include small groups. Church of the Ville in Louisville, Kentucky, is a prime example. At Church of the Ville, we believe that true life-change can only happen in the context of relationships, so our groups exist for a single purpose: to foster life-giving relationships that empower people for ministry.

A small groups system such as this offers a number of effective discipleship components. The greatest strengths of our small groups system are described below.

FREE-MARKET SYSTEM: Groups can meet anytime, anywhere, about any appropriate topic/activity that allows group members to build relationships and talk about next steps of faith. We train our Group Leaders to guide group members to take one next step of faith each semester—if they do not attend church, invite them to our Sunday services. If they have not surrendered their life to Christ, invite them to do so at some point during the semester; and so on, and so forth.

LOW-PRESSURE, HIGH COMMITMENT: Groups are designed to fit into group members' routines; we encourage them to select groups that match their interests so that scheduling is easy for them.

SEMESTER-SCHEDULE: Running groups for no more than 12 weeks at a time with 4-6 weeks off in between each semester allows Group Leaders and group members to rest during preparations for upcoming semesters.

FREE RESOURCES/ONGOING TRAINING: Our Group Leader

Training can be done in a single day, in less than 2 hours, in fact; we are then able to offer free leadership resources throughout the semester. The primary resources we offer all of our Group Leaders include:

WEEKLY GROUP LEADER

UPDATES: These are e-mail messages distributed by our Groups Coordinator, offering helpful hints on how to facilitate upcoming group meetings, reminders/announcements, and encouraging words from Scripture.

WEEK-IN-REVIEW FORMS: These are completed by each Group Leader each week; I respond to every form submitted, every week. Each form contains three questions and can be completed via e-mail or by text message:

1. What win(s) did you experience at your most recent group meeting?
2. What struggles are you experiencing—personally or as a Group Leader—that we can pray with you about this week?
3. How can I help you grow as a leader this week?

FACE-TO-FACE MEETINGS:

I schedule a sit-down, face-to-face meeting over lunch or coffee with every Group Leader, every semester, to talk about how their group is doing and how it can be more effective.

Allow me to share a recent success story of how our small groups are helping Church of the Ville equip Group Leaders to foster life-giving relationships that empower group-members for ministry. Three weeks ago, I sat down with Stephanie, who has led a Ladies Brunch Group for the past two semesters. She is doing an excellent job investing in the ladies in her group, but what made this face-to-face meeting so significant was that Stephanie brought her two daughters, Lauren (age 13) and Heather (age 10) with her, as they are out of school for the summer. During the course of our conversation, Heather piped up with a question: Is there anything like this for kids at Church of the Ville?"

Real life-change happens in the context of relationships. Small groups foster those relationships. What else do you need to know?

Heather was wondering if it was possible for children to lead small groups! She wanted to work with her mom to create a group for her friends. They would meet at Baskin-Robbins every Wednesday, from 2-3 p.m., to drink milkshakes, play board games, and talk about her church. This is the beauty of a free-market small groups system: Even though our Summer 2017 semester was already in full-swing, even though we were not actively engaged in promoting group sign-ups, we had the flexibility to launch our first-ever Ville Kids Group—Heather officially labeled it the “Kids Fun Group”—three weeks into the semester! Heather and Stephanie hosted their first group meeting six days later: 8 kids showed up to drink a milkshake and listen to ten-year-old Heather talk about Church of the Ville!

Real life-change happens in the context of relationships. Small groups foster those relationships. What else do you need to know?

TYLER CROWDER. Church of the Ville (COTV) is a life-giving church in Louisville, Kentucky, that launched its first weekend worship gathering in September 2016. Our church exists to reach people for Jesus, to help them discover their purpose, and to fulfill their God-given potential in Christ! We accomplish this mission in four ways; we help people Know God, Find Freedom, Discover Purpose, and Make a Difference! For more information about Church of the Ville and/or their small groups system, visit www.churchoftheville.tv. You may also e-mail us at office@churchoftheville.tv.
